Prevent. Promote. Protect.

Audrain County's most influential human service agencies and educational entities are pleased to announce a plan for engaging our community to promote the emotional well-being of children and families over the course of the 2011-2012 school year! Our second initiative, "Family Strengths" will offer practical and applicable information on how to celebrate existing family strengths and encourage skill development to create stronger families. Please take advantage of the opportunity to learn from Kathy Dothage a Regional Human Development Specialist with University of Missouri Extension. You are assured to walk away from the experience with a new perspective on parenting!

Family Strengths

Families are crucial in the development of human competence and character. Families play a major role in how well children do in school, how well they perform on the job as adults and how well they contribute to society in general. Families have the first and foremost influence on our development.

Despite the stress and trouble families face, there are ways to keep the family strong. This seminar will include information on the definition of the family, the function and roles of families, types of families, and nine characteristics of strong families identified by researchers. This session will celebrate existing family strengths and encourage skill development to create stronger families.

To register for this interactive seminar:

Stop by the Audrain County
University of Missouri Extension,
101 N. Jefferson St., Rm 304, Courthouse, Mexico or call: 573 581-3231.
